Canada vows 'dollar for dollar' tariff as US talks fail

New 50% US duties on $20bn of Canadian goods take effect after negotiations fail to seal deal, hitting products from hockey sticks to cement

MOSCOW

HEFTY US tariffs on some Canadian products took effect on Saturday after days of negotiations that went down to the wire failed to produce an agreement. Canadian Prime Minister Mark Carney vowed that his country will match the US tariffs "dollar for dollar to protect our workers and businesses," as officials said on late Friday that Washington and Ottawa had not managed to strike a deal.

The lack of a final agreement means that new 50-per cent duties impacting some $20 billion worth of goods, or 5.5 per cent of Canadian exports to the United States, came into force.

Impacted products range from hockey sticks to cement.

US Trade Representative Jamieson Greer said Friday that "tonight, Canada declined to finalize the trade deal under the terms agreed earlier this week." That came despite Washington's offers for tariff reductions in sectors like steel and aluminum, he added in a statement. A senior US official said there are no further scheduled meetings for now.

The surprise announcement came after Trump said that the United States "should be able to have a deal with Canada," citing his "good relationship" with Carney. After hours of trade talks on Friday, however, Canada's top negotiator Dominic LeBlanc told reporters that officials still "have more work to do." LeBlanc and Greer also met for around three hours on Thursday. Greer said that the Trump administration put on the table "significant tariff reductions on steel, aluminum, autos and lumber" in exchange for concessions from Canada.

He said that Canada was also maintaining its "prolonged retaliation" against the United States, including prohibitions on certain American goods and services. Canada's regional leaders said previously that the United States was particularly irritated by one retaliatory measure: the removal of US alcohol and wine from liquor stores.

But Carney added in a separate statement that "last-minute changes in the US proposed terms were unfair, uneconomic, and called into question the reliability of any deal." While Washington and Ottawa made "important progress" in recent weeks, Carney said, this "has not been enough to meet our objectives for Canadians." The senior US official, speaking anonymously, said Canada sought concessions the US could not provide. But they added talks were candid, not acrimonious. AP

S Korea sends first container ship through Arctic route

SEOUL

SOUTH Korea sent its first trial container ship through the Arctic on Saturday, as the Middle East war rattles global shipping, while environmental groups warned the route could accelerate polar ice melt.

The Middle East conflict, sparked by US-Israeli strikes on Iran in February, has roiled global shipping, sending governments and shipping firms scrambling to seek alternative routes. "PanStar Acro" container ship is to sail to Europe via the Arctic.

Supreme Court allows work to progress on WH ballroom

WASHINGTON

CHIEF Justice John Roberts on Friday allowed the White House to continue construction on President Donald Trump's USD 400 million ballroom project for now, as the Supreme Court considers the Trump administration's emergency request to intervene in lawsuits over the project. The temporary order came hours before lower-court rulings would have forced a halt to aboveground construction of the project because Trump didn't get congressional approval.

Artist renderings relating to White House Ballroom construction, contained in a filing by the Trump administration to the US Supreme Court | AP

It will remain in place until the Supreme Court issues a more durable decision, though the one-page document does not detail Roberts' reasoning or indicate when another ruling will be handed down. Roberts signed the order because he oversees emergency appeals of cases filed in the capital.Trump thanked the high court and the chief justice during his remarks later Friday during a political appearance in South Carolina.

"When they say proceed, I think that's a good thing. That's a good thing," Trump said. The case is coming before the nation's highest court as Trump, a Republican, exercises unparalleled assertions of presidential power and increasingly seeks to mold the capital in his own image. The administration has argued that the president has total authority to renovate the White House and other federal buildings as he sees fit. When Trump first announced the plans for a new ballroom, he did not emphasise national security.

US federal judge strikes down Trump's 75-country visa ban

NEW YORK

A US federal judge has struck down a government ban on visas to nationals from 75 countries who wish to settle in the country indefinitely, dealing a blow to President Donald Trump's immigration crackdown.

In a ruling issued on Friday in the Southern District of New York, Judge Jeannette Vargas set aside the policy Friday as "contrary to law and in excess of statutory authority."

Secretary of State Marco Rubio exceeded his authority by issuing the policy, which "runs afoul" of the Immigration and Nationality Act by mandating "the refusal of visas to eligible applicants without any basis in law," the judge ruled.

Vargas said the policy also undermines the congressional requirement that puts consular officers at the forefront of any visa decision.
