POST OF THE DAY

V D Satheesan @vdsatheesan

The FIR against Shri Rahul Gandhi ji in Uttarakhand is deeply disturbing. The issue he raised was serious: a so-called "purification" ritual was performed at Haldwani's Ramlila Ground after Congress President Shri Mallikarjun Kharge ji addressed a rally there, an act that naturally raised grave questions about dignity, equality and caste discrimination. Keralam strongly condemns such attempts to criminalise dissent. We stand firmly with Rahul ji and Kharge ji.

Water hyacinth chokes Vembanad; tourism, transport & fisheries hit

Drinking water supply & movement of agricultural produce in North Kuttanad also affected

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Kottayam

A cruise through the serene waters of Vembanad Lake is one of the primary attractions for tourists visiting Kumarakom. However, dense blankets of water hyacinth floating across the lake have cast a shadow over the tourism, fisheries and water transport sector in the region.

Water hyacinth is fast emerging as a serious threat to the water bodies in Kumarakom and surrounding areas. Its unchecked spread across the lake is disrupting tourism activities, hampering inland water transport, and affecting the livelihoods of local fishermen and communities dependent on the waterways.

As the invasive weeds have piled up along the shores of the resorts bordering the lake, kayaking and boating activities have been forced to a halt at several places. Houseboats, shikara boats and speed boats, which rely on the lake, are also facing a severe crisis.

"The accumulation of water hyacinths has badly hit tourism activities in Kumarakom. While a cruise through backwaters is the primary demand of guests, sometimes, we are unable to meet their demand due to the proliferation of water hyacinth," said K Arun Kumar, general manager, the Lake Song resorts.

Officials with the State Water Transport Department (SWTD) said the infestation on the lake has compelled them to cancel several services between Kumarakom and Muhamma.

> It takes 45 minutes for a boat to complete the travel from Muhamma to Kumarakom, the duration has doubled due to the infestation, forcing us to cancel some trips — K A Mujeeb, station master, Muhamma

"A total of 32 trips are operated from Muhamma to Kumarakom daily. However, we are forced to cancel six to seven trips every day due to water hyacinth infestation, as the propellers of the boats get damaged. It takes 45 minutes for a boat to complete the travel from Muhamma to Kumarakom, the duration has doubled due to the infestation, forcing us to cancel some trips" said K A Mujeeb, station master, Muhamma.

He said government employees who rely on boat services are also sometimes unable to reach offices on time. The infestation also affects fuel efficiency and causes damage to boats. Logs and other debris are often hidden beneath the dense vegetation, making it difficult for crew members to spot such hazards while navigating.

The impact extends beyond transportation, affecting the supply of drinking water and movement of agricultural produce in North Kuttanad, as well as disrupting tourism and fisheries.

Fishermen said the dense growth of water hyacinth has made it difficult to venture into the lake and cast their nets. The weeds get entangled in the nets depending on the wind direction, damaging them and adding to the financial burden on workers who depend on fishing for their livelihood.

Workers engaged in harvesting meat clams and white clams are also facing a similar crisis. The availability of carp has declined significantly, with the average daily catch falling from around 1,000-1,300 kg to just 250-400 kg, according to workers.

No tech snag in V-P's convoy: Dist police chief

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Pathanamthitta

THE Pathanamthitta district police on Monday dismissed reports that a vehicle in the convoy of Vice-President C P Radhakrishnan developed a technical snag or that the wireless communication system used by the convoy malfunctioned during his visit to Aranmula to inaugurate the Uthrattathi Vallamkali.

District police chief R Anand said none of the vehicles in the convoy had experienced any malfunction, including any problem with the wireless communication systems. There were no other technical issues either, he said.

He said all vehicles forming part of a VVIP convoy are thoroughly inspected and their condition verified in advance as part of the security arrangements. Vehicles that are not part of the convoy are also subjected to periodic checks, the police chief said. Therefore, an incident in which a police vehicle was seen being inspected might have been misunderstood, he added.

The district police chief said the report published about the alleged technical problems was factually incorrect.

Chokramudi access row: Residents seek entry as forest dept cites concerns

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Idukki

AS Chokramudi draws visitors for its Neelakurinji bloom, local residents who had earlier joined efforts to protect the hill's flora and fauna from encroachment are raising concerns over restrictions on accessing the recovered revenue land.

The forest department says it is willing to relax the rules for local residents by allowing them free access to view the flowers through the designated trekking centre.

The disagreement comes as the forest department regulates tourist movement at Chokramudi during the flowering season, with the hill attracting hundreds of visitors every day.

Residents, however, say their association with Chokramudi goes beyond tourism. Local people and tribal communities had earlier joined hands to oppose encroachment and construction activities on the hill and had supported efforts to protect and recover government land.

Members of the Chokramudi Protection Committee say residents who took part in those efforts should not now be unnecessarily restricted from accessing the flowering areas.

Committee council member Baiju C P said residents had stood together to protect Chokramudi when encroachment activities threatened its ecological character. He alleged that Neelakurinji plants had also been damaged during earlier encroachment activities and questioned the restrictions now being placed on local residents by forest officials, who turned a blind eye on encroachers then.

The forest department, however, says its restrictions are intended to regulate activities in the ecologically sensitive area during the flowering season and ensure visitor safety.

Devikulam range officer Arun Kumar said local residents could be allowed free access to view the Neelakurinji through the designated trekking centre. However, he said activities such as off-road jeep rides and other adventurous rides could not be permitted if they posed risks to visitors or threatened the flowering plants.

The immediate dispute concerns jeep rides being operated by local drivers to the recovered revenue land. The operators reportedly claimed that they had obtained permission from the Bisonvalley panchayat.

However, the panchayat president, in a written communication, said the local body had no responsibility for conducting such rides.

Following this, the Bisonvalley village officer issued a stop memo prohibiting unauthorised entry of people and vehicles into the government land in Survey No 36 of Block 137 at Chokramudi and the use of the land for vehicular traffic. The order cited Sections 7 and 12 of the Kerala Land Conservancy Act, 1957.

High footfall

The Neelakurinji bloom continues to draw visitors to Chokramudi, with over 6,000 tourists having visited the site from its opening on August 24 until Sunday. The daily turnout after the opening day remained between 700 and 1,000 visitors, according to the forest department
